Creative approaches to listening, reflection and inclusion.

The VOICES Project supports professionals working with children and young people to use photo-based methods to encourage discussion, reflection and participation around issues that matter to them.

The VOICES Project offers free workshops and professional development sessions for schools, education settings and organisations working with children and young people.

Sessions can be tailored to your setting and explore how images and photography can open up conversations around topics such as wellbeing, inclusion, transitions, sustainability, anxiety, playground design, nature-based education, and teaching and learning experiences.

Photo-based activities can help children and young people share thoughts, feelings and experiences that may be difficult to express through traditional approaches.

"This project has given us valuable insight into children's views in our setting. We have changed practice because of our findings."
SENCo, Sefton

Sessions can be delivered face-to-face or online.

For further information including contact details please visit the Voices Project website:

ehu.ac.uk/voicesproject